

Analysis of the bug

The `key` field in the `entry` structure is `KEYSZ` bytes including the string terminator, but the `readkey()` function may read `KEYSZ` bytes besides the terminator. Therefore, the `strcpy()` in the `n` command may write a null byte in the LSB of the `value` pointer.