

The second `read()` reads up to `CMD_MAX` bytes instead of `ARG_MAX`, thus potentially overflowing the `c.arg` array.

The idea is to overwrite the `f` pointer in the `cmd` structure with the address of `system@plt`. The `system()` function will then execute the command stored in `c.arg`.