

Attack plan

The idea is to overwrite the `:secret0` key with an attacker-chosen value that doesn't start with `:`, so that the secret value can be later extracted with a simple `s` command. The bug can be exploited to first obtain a pointer in the heap, and then redirect it by changing just the least significant byte.